

Tracy Lamb – Director – United States Olympic Training Center, Chula Vista, CA

Tracy is from a Lake Placid family with a strong background in the Nordic ski world. His father, Vernon was a member of the 1980 Lake Placid Olympic Organizing Committee and an International ski jumping judge. His father is also an inductee into the US ski hall of fame. Older brother Joe was a Nordic Combined Olympian in 1972. Tracy, a graduate of Temple University, was an active Biathlete who just missed landing a position on the 1984 U.S. Olympic Team. He became the national coach for Biathlon in 1985 and helped the US win its first International medal in Biathlon in 1987. In 1988 he served as coach for the US Olympic Biathlon Team in Calgary. After the games in Calgary he was hired by Biathlon Canada to oversee their Biathlon program. Tracy was head coach for Biathlon Canada from 1989 to 1991 helping Canada win its first medals ever in the sport of Biathlon. Tracy has worked for the U.S. Olympic Committee for 25 years working, serving in many roles. In 2012 Tracy was the village director for the Endurance village during the Sochi Winter Olympic Games. Currently he serves as the Director of the Olympic Training Center in Chula Vista California.

Tracy is still active in his sport of Biathlon serving as an International Technical Delegate for the IBU (International Biathlon Union,). Tracy's other role in Biathlon is that of an Organizer. In 1999 /2001 and 2004 Tracy organized and served as chief of competition for the Biathlon World Cup events hosted in Lake Placid. At the 2002 Olympic Biathlon competitions in Salt Lake Tracy served as a key leader. In 2006 Tracy was the Team Leader for the US Olympic Biathlon Team competing in Torino Italy. During those games the Coca-Cola Company presented the LIVE OLYMPIC award to Tracy, as an individual who has lived and represented the Olympic ideal in how they live their life.

Tracy's duties at the Olympic training center as the Director include working with the various national governing bodies on their sport programs in Chula Vista and coordinating the efforts of the community and state towards supporting sport programs and events.

Prior to moving to California Tracy was the Vice President of the Lake Placid Central School Board, a member of the Lake Placid/North Elba Historical Society, a member of the Adirondack Medical Wellness Advisory Board as well as serving on the ORDA (Olympic Regional Development Authority) Community Advisory Panel. Tracy currently serves on the Chula Vista Police Foundation and is on the Executive Board of the International Association of Sport Performance Centers serving as its Treasurer for the global organization.
